NEW CONSTRUCTION WE BUILD DIFFERENTLY

INSULATED CONCRETE FORMS

Insulated Concrete Forms (ICFs) construction is a method of building that uses interlocking blocks made of insulating foam to create the walls of a building. The blocks are stacked and connected to form the shape of the walls, and are then filled with concrete to create a solid, monolithic structure.

ICFs offer a number of benefits over traditional wood frame construction. They provide excellent insulation, resulting in energy savings and improved comfort for the building occupants. ICFs also have a high resistance to fires, storms, and other natural disasters, making them a very durable and safe building option.

In addition to the walls, ICFs can also be used to create foundations, floors, and roofs. They are easy to work with and can be adapted to a variety of architectural styles. ICFs are a cost-effective and sustainable building option, and are becoming increasingly popular in both residential and commercial construction.

! Wood framed houses use 60% more energy in comparison to Insulated Concrete Form (ICF) houses.

! ICF walls built with reinforced concrete and fire-retardant Expanded Polystyrene Foam (EPS), providing a fire protection rating of up to 4 hours – 4 times that of a typical wood frame home.

WOOD FRAME CONSTRUCTION

Wood frame construction is a method of building that uses wooden beams, joists, and studs as the main structural support for a building. This type of construction is common in residential and light commercial buildings, and is known for its versatility, cost-effectiveness, and durability.

In wood frame construction, a foundation is typically poured first, followed by the construction of the walls and floor system. The walls are typically made up of wooden studs that are spaced at regular intervals and are covered with sheathing (such as plywood or OSB) to provide structural support and a base for the exterior siding. The floor system is made up of joists, which are horizontal beams that support the flooring and provide a base for the interior finishes.

The roof is typically supported by trusses or rafters, which are also made of wood. Wood frame construction allows for a wide range of design options and can be easily adapted to various architectural styles. It is also relatively quick and easy to build, making it a popular choice for developers and builders.

CUSTOMERS EXPERIENCE

WHAT CUSTOMERS SAY*

Rose Ann Hansen

We used GR Home Renovations Inc for a full house renovation. New floors, paint, remove popcorn ceilings, closet doors, lighting, plumbing, full kitchen with raised ceiling, installed new appliances, and 2 bathroom remodel. Every room was touched in our remodel. It was completed on time and on budget. Nick was very responsive and attentive to our request and needs. His team was amazing and work so hard to give us everything we asked for. We are so pleased with their work and service!

Tiffany Cosby

GR Home Renovations was an excellent company to work with. Nick and Alex came to our house several times to walk through with us and made sure we were getting exactly what we wanted before the renovation started. From start to finish it took two months and they completely transformed our 70's looking house into a beautiful oasis. I love getting to come home everyday to a house that is just what we wanted. Nick and Alex were so accommodating and always answered our calls. You will not regret working with them! They have an amazing team and always show up on time and cleaned up at the end of every day.

Chad Keller

We used GR Home Renovation for painting and flooring throughout, "popcorn" ceiling removal, concrete, sliding door installation, 3 bathroom remodels, electrical and new fencing. The project was completed on budget and on time with high quality. Alex (the owner) had fantastic ideas on improving our property. Russ (the project foreman) was excellent, with superior communication and organization. We highly recommend and look forward to working with GR Home renovation again.
